

Sex Education Conference and Workshop for RSE Teachers and Sex Education Providers

Making Sense of Young People's Sexuality

Date: Tuesday 6th November 2012

Time: 10.00-16.00

Venue: NCB offices, Albany House, 73-75 Great Victoria Street, Belfast BT2 7AF

Research conducted by ARK's Young Life and Times (YLT) survey shows that many young people remain frustrated with the standard of sex education they receive. At the same time, teachers involved in RSE teaching are often discouraged about the lack of resources and training opportunities in this subject area.

As part of the ESRC Festival of Social Science we have organised a FREE event which provides a unique opportunity for anyone involved in the delivery of sex education to find out about some of the most innovative programmes and resources available for sex education providers in Northern Ireland.

We have invited experts to facilitate workshops on sex education programmes, including:

'If I was Jack' – a video resource for working with young men on unintended pregnancies; 'Choices' – a sex education project for young women; information for working with vulnerable young people; 'OUTstanding Youthwork' programme for working with LGBT people; and a workshop facilitated by a GUM nurse on sexually transmitted infections (STIs).

This is also a chance get an update on the most recent research findings on young people's sexual attitudes and lifestyles in Northern Ireland.
