

ARK is pleased to announce a seminar focusing on new public attitudes data on refugees.

A welcoming Northern Ireland? Understanding sentiment towards asylum seekers and refugees

by Dr Lucy Michael
Ulster University

The seminar will take place on
Thursday 22 November, at 2.45 to 4.00 pm
Refreshments will be available at 2.30

at NICVA
1 Duncairn Gardens, Belfast BT15 2GB

In this seminar, Lucy Michael will review data from the Northern Ireland Life and Times Survey and Young Life and Times Survey on attitudes to refugees, asylum seekers and ethnic minorities. In addition, she will consider the extent to which refugees both represent a unique focus for attention within the immigrant population and also offer a proxy for other kinds of views on immigration.

Dr Lucy Michael is a Lecturer in Sociology at Ulster University.

This event is free of charge, but places need to be booked by Thursday 15 November, by emailing **s.grant@ulster.ac.uk**
